NEW YEAR'S EVE WORSHIP: "A Thousand Years in Thy Sight"

~ A Service For the Turning of the Year (with Holy Communion)

Join us Monday, December 31, 2018 (6:30 pm) for New Year's Eve Worship under the theme, "A Thousand Years In Thy Sight." This service will celebrate God's gift of time and the blessings he brings us through it. Acknowledge together God's gift of seconds, minutes, hours, days, years, decades, centuries, millennia, and eternity. Holy Communion is offered in this service to strengthen and comfort us in faith, enjoying His real presence as we enter into the New Year together, together in Christ!

PASTOR'S MESSAGE: "Time for a 180"

In her new book, "My 180: Loving God More," author Angie Molkentin, brings you along on a 180-day spiritual journey--a search for scriptural motivation to love God completely. For 180 days Angie committed to a more active prayer life, regular study of the Bible, and constant watchfulness for role models God placed around her.

"So 'My 180' is not really a book about me," Angie explains, "It's about God working through me...and the people I meet or observe along the way." (pp.8-9)

Angie's book is a fascinating window into "rediscovering, rekindling, guarding, and keeping" (p.11) a living, loving relationship with God and how that intersects with all the people God brings into your life. She's a married mother of three who describes how just about everything she and her husband were doing revolved around the kids, and that their relationship was kind of on autopilot as they focused on family life and activities. "It's possible for a relationship with God to be put on autopilot too...I know God will always be there, and I have every intention to spend time with him once I get through this busy day, week, month. It's a dangerous slippery slope." (p.10 emphasis mine) "So here's what I did in 'My 180'"

- ✦ Every day for 180 days, I prayed to God, asking, "God, help me to love you more. Help me to better understand what it means to love you. And help me to notice other people who are good examples of those who love you."
- ✦ Committed to daily journaling.
- ✦ Every week I studied what the Bible says about loving God
- ✦ Checked in regularly with an accountability partner.

NPH editor, Pastor Christopher Doerr writes, "God answered Angie's prayers, as he promises to. He blessed her use of his Word and her daily meditation on it, as he promises to. God brought her back to the true foundations of human love for him: repentance, Baptism, focusing more on the Word than on her own feelings, and, at the heart of it all, "love because he first loved us" (1 John 4:19). She invites you to read all about her experiment in her beautiful book, "My 180: Loving God More.

My 180: Loving God More isn't just a play-by-play of what happened to her, though she does tell her story well. It's also an encouraging handbook to try her experiment yourself. Your members can strive as she strove to drink more deeply from that "spring" of the "highest doctrines." The proper pursuit of greater love for God always leads us back to better knowing his love for us. An incomprehensible height, for sure."

You can learn more about this new book at www.nph.net. (Available in hardcover or e-book for $15.99).

It's a great book for the New Year--and remember--for Christians, the new Christian church-year starts already on Sunday, December 2, with a the beginning of the Advent season! A time to think of renewal in your faith, setting some spiritual goals and new possibilities!
